Through August 31, 2006

Until Recently, The NASDAQ Has Lagged For A Number of Reasons

Throughout much of this year, investors remained focused on energy and other commodity-related stocks

Macroeconomic concerns regarding Fed policy and oil prices caused investors to shy away from higher-beta sectors

Concerns about excess inventories last spring in several product areas (PCs, handsets, flat panels) kept investors on the sidelines

However, since the Fed paused on August 8, through last week (Sept. 22), the NASDAQ has significantly outperformed other indices
