On July 22, 2004, Peak International Limited (the Company) held a conference call to discuss the financial results from its first fiscal quarter of 2005. At approximately minute 26 of the conference call, Mr. Calvin Reed, the Company's Chief Executive Officer, inadvertently stated that he believed that the overall market for one of the Company's new products, disk caddies, was estimated to be at $7.0 to $10.0 million a month. In fact, Mr. Reed intended to state that he believes that the overall market for disk caddies is estimated to be approximately $15.0 million per year plus approximately $3.0 million a year in recycling services and that the Company would have a strong performance for its first year in this new segment if it were able to generate approximately $1.0 million in gross revenue from sales of disk caddies and recycling services.
