Item 8.01. Other Events.

DaVita Inc. (the Company) will locate its new permanent headquarters building in downtown Denver, Colorado.

The Company's new headquarters will total more than 270,000 square feet. The Company has acquired the land at a cost of about $11 million and the estimated construction costs will be approximately $90 million. Construction is scheduled to begin in early 2011 and the Company expects to begin occupying the building in the second half of 2012. The new headquarters will house not only a variety of corporate functions, but also training facilities. Thousands of the Company's employees will travel to Denver each year to attend DaVita University. The Company expects this headquarters to save costs over time through absorbing future growth, reducing travel cost, and reducing the cost of teammate training.

Following a one-year search for suitable headquarters space in downtown Denver, the Company determined that existing office space would not meet its needs and that leasing and retrofitting an existing space would be more expensive than building a headquarters that meets the Company's long term business requirements. The Company will own the building initially, as the Company's cost to borrow is significantly lower than the implied capital cost under a lease. Going forward, the Company will monitor market conditions and will pursue alternative financing arrangements as soon as they are to the economic advantage of the Company's stockholders.
