Item 8.01 OTHER EVENTS

In January 2019, AmBase Corporation ("AmBase" or the "Company") filed its 2018 federal income tax return seeking a refund of approximately $10.7 million of AMT credit carryforwards as provided for in the 2017 Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (the "2017 Tax Act"). In March 2019, the Company received a $10.7 million federal tax refund based on the Company's 2018 federal income tax return as filed.

The Internal Revenue Service ("IRS"), typically has broad discretion to examine taxpayer tax returns, even after refunds have been paid to taxpayers, which could result in adjustments to AMT Credit carryforward amounts refunded and/or claimed as refundable and/or AMT Credit carryforward amounts ultimately received. The Company's management is continuing to work closely with outside advisors on the Company's tax matters as they relate to the 2017 Tax Act and on the various federal tax return matters for the numerous interrelated tax years, including the provisions and application of the 2017 Tax Act along with the amounts and timing of any AMT Credit carryforward refunds. The AMT Credit carryforward amounts from prior tax years and related refund(s) received and/or projected to be received could potentially be subject to IRS or other tax authority audits, including possible IRS Joint Committee review and/or approval. The Company cannot predict whether or not the IRS and/or other tax authorities will review the Company's tax returns filed, to be filed and/or as filed in prior years, and/or seek refund from the Company of amounts already refunded as a result of an IRS review, if any. Moreover, applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), and IRS regulations permit the IRS to challenge Company tax positions and filed returns and seek recovery of refunded amounts or of additional taxes for an extended period of time after such returns are filed.

The 2017 Tax Act makes broad and complex changes to the Code, including, among other changes, significant changes to the U.S. corporate tax rate and certain other changes to the Code that impact the taxation of corporations. The U.S. Treasury Department, the IRS, and other standard-setting bodies could interpret or issue additional guidance in the future on how provisions of the 2017 Tax Act will be applied or otherwise administered that differs from our interpretation. As we complete our analysis of the 2017 Tax Act, and IRS regulations and guidance issued in respect thereof and collect and prepare necessary data, and interpret any additional guidance, we may make adjustments to provisional amounts that we have recorded that may materially impact our provision for income taxes in the period in which the adjustments are made. Additionally, there is risk relating to assumptions regarding the outcome of tax matters, based in whole or in part upon consultation with outside advisors; risk relating to potential unfavorable decisions in tax proceedings; and risks regarding changes in, and/or interpretations of federal and state income tax laws. The Company can give no assurances as to the final outcome of any IRS review of the AMT Credit carryforward refunds already received or the final amount of any future AMT Credit carryforward refunds, if any, or when they might be received. The Company is continuing to pursue various legal and tax recoveries; however, the legal and the tax recovery process can be lengthy and there can be no assurance that the Company will be successful in these endeavors.

For additional information with regard to the Company's income taxes see the Company's previously filed periodic reports. The information presented herein should be read in conjunction with the Company's consolidated financial statements filed in its Annual Report on Form 10-K and its Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q.

A more complete discussion of the Company's annual results and the Company's affairs will be included in AmBase Corporation's Annual Report on 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2018, which the Company expects will be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, on or before April 1, 2019.

These are not the only risks that we face. There may be additional risks that we do not presently know of or that we currently believe are immaterial which could also impair our business and/or financial position.
