ITEM 8.01. OTHER EVENTS.

On September 7, 2011 we received a Notice of Deficiency from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) claiming that we owe additional net taxes of $154 million, plus interest based on an audit of the 2006 and 2007 tax years of Boston Scientific Corporation. We previously disclosed in our public filings our expectation that we would not be able to resolve our tax liability for this period through applicable IRS administrative procedures and, in our most recent public filing, we disclosed the July 2011 receipt of an IRS Revenue Agent's Report for this period. This Notice of Deficiency is materially consistent with the July 2011 Revenue Agent's Report. We intend to file a timely petition to the U.S. Tax Court contesting this assessment.

The $154 million net assessment for the Company's 2006 and 2007 tax years relates to transfer pricing adjustments proposed by the IRS that would result in incremental tax of $283 million offset in part by an unrelated agreed refund of $129 million. The adjustments proposed by the IRS are based on positions substantially similar to those currently subject to our U.S. Tax Court proceedings for the 2001, 2002 and 2003 tax years of Guidant Corporation. The primary issue under dispute for all of these years is the intercompany transfer pricing in connection with technology license agreements between certain domestic and foreign subsidiaries of Guidant, which we acquired in April 2006. We do not agree with the transfer pricing methodologies applied by the IRS or its resulting assessment. We believe that we have meritorious defenses for our tax filings, that the IRS positions with regard to these matters are inconsistent with the applicable tax laws and the existing Treasury regulations, and that the previously reported income tax for the years in question is appropriate.

No payments on the assessment would be required, nor will the refund be processed, until the dispute is definitively resolved, which, based on experiences of other companies, could take several years. We believe that our income tax reserves associated with this matter are adequate and that the final resolution will not have a material impact on our financial condition or results of operations. However, both the final resolution and potential impact of that resolution are uncertain and could have a material impact on our financial condition or results of operations.
