Big attendance at forum

A very considerable number of personnel attended the employee fora held on 18 December to learn about the merger plans unveiled by Statoil and Hydro.

The news was well received, and my impression is that people primarily see the value of and huge opportunities offered by a merger, says Reidar Gjørsum, executive vice president for corporate communication.

Employee fora were held during the day at the offices in Stavanger, Harstad, Trondheim, Stjørdal, Bergen, Mongstad and Oslo.

A possible change of name, employee participation, future office addresses and questions about the need for downsizing were among the issues frequently raised.

Many of those attending also took the opportunity to congratulate the management and each other.

Peter Mellbye, executive vice president for International Exploration & Production, chaired two meetings in Stavanger, with the first transmitted as a webcast to staff outside Norway.

Eldar Sætre, the chief financial officer, also chaired an employee forum in Stavanger. Personnel in Bergen and at Mongstad were briefed by Margareth Øvrum, executive vice president for Technology & Projects, while Terje Overvik, executive vice president for Exploration & Production Norway, performed this function in Trondheim.

Nina Udnes Tronstad, executive vice president for health, safety and the environment, and Jon Arnt Jacobsen, executive vice president for Manufacturing & Marketing, chaired the meetings in Harstad and Oslo respectively.

More than 4,000 Statoil employees in Norway participated in the fora. The INT organisation was well briefed through the webcast and by e-mail.

Webcast of the meetings in both Norwegian and English can be accessed on Ticker.
