Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement

On January 3, 2011 Stereotaxis, Inc. (the “Company”) entered into a Sixth Amendment and Catheter and Mapping System Extension to the Development Alliance and Supply Agreement (the “Agreement”) with Biosense Webster, Inc. (“Biosense Webster”) which amends the terms of certain agreements between the Company and Biosense Webster.

The Agreement extends Biosense Webster’s rights to distribute certain products that have been developed under previous collaboration activities between the Company and Biosense Webster on an exclusive basis until December 15, 2015 and thereafter on a nonexclusive basis through December 31, 2018. Biosense Webster’s rights to distribute such products in Japan is extended on an exclusive basis to the later of December 31, 2017 or five years after the date of approval of the applicable product for sale in Japan and on a nonexclusive basis to the later of December 31, 2020 or eight years after the date of approval of the applicable product for sale in Japan. The Agreement updates the parties’ revenue sharing arrangement in accordance with such extension.

Biosense Webster and the Company also agreed to collaborate to develop a new product based on Biosense Webster’s next generation irrigated catheter. Biosense Webster agreed to pay the Company a portion of the revenues from sales of the new product. Biosense Webster would have worldwide rights to distribute the new product on an exclusive basis through December 31 of the year in which the fifth anniversary of US FDA approval for sale of the new product occurs and on a nonexclusive basis through December 31 of the year in which the eighth anniversary of US FDA approval for sale of the new product occurs.

Under the Agreement Biosense Webster agreed to pursue an expanded indication in the U.S. for the Navistar® RMT Thermocool catheter for the treatment of atrial fibrillation. Biosense Webster and the Company agreed to cooperate to seek other additional regulatory approvals for certain other existing products, as well as regulatory approvals for the new product that the parties have agreed to develop.

Either party may terminate the Agreement in certain specified “change of control” situations involving the Company, although the termination would not be effective until one year after the change of control. If either party terminates the Agreement under this provision, the Company must pay a termination fee to Biosense Webster equal to 5% of the total equity valuation of Stereotaxis in the change of control transaction, up to a maximum of $10 million. If a change of control of the Company occurs after Biosense Webster has received approval from the US FDA for atrial fibrillation indication for the Navistar® RMT Thermocool catheter as described above, the Company would be required to pay an additional $10 million fee to Biosense Webster, and termination of the Agreement by either party would not be effective until two years after the change of control.

The Company has had an alliance with Biosense Webster since May 2002 to integrate Biosense Webster’s 3D catheter location sensing technology with the Company’s instrument control system, and to jointly develop associated location sensing electrophysiology mapping and ablation catheters that are navigable with the Company’s Niobe Magnetic Navigation System. This alliance was expanded in November 2003 to include the parallel integration of the Company’s instrument control technology with Biosense Webster’s line of non-location sensing mapping and ablation catheters.

In July 2008, Biosense Webster agreed to advance $10 million to the Company and allowed the Company to defer up to $8 million of payments due to Biosense Webster for research and development related to jointly developed products. Repayment of these advances and deferred payments, together with interest (the “Obligations”), will be recouped by Biosense Webster from revenue share payments otherwise owing to the Company on the sale of magnetically enabled co-developed catheters or through periodic minimum payments. If not fully recouped, any remaining Obligations will be due to Biosense Webster on December 31, 2011. At September 30, 2010, the remaining balance of the Obligations was $9.6 million.

Item 7.01. Regulation FD Disclosure

On January 5, 2011, the Company issued a press release (the “Press Release”) regarding the Agreement. A copy of the Press Release is being filed as Exhibit 99.1 hereto, and the statements contained therein are incorporated by reference herein.
