Item 8.01 – Other Events

From time to time, Community Trust Bancorp, Inc. (“CTBI”) and/or its affiliates may be involved in information requests, reviews, investigations, and proceedings (both formal and informal) by various governmental agencies and law enforcement authorities regarding their respective businesses. Any of these matters may result in material adverse consequences to CTBI and its affiliates, including adverse judgments, findings, limitations on merger, and acquisition activity, settlements, fines, penalties, orders, injunctions, and other actions. Such adverse consequences may be material to the financial position of CTBI or its results of operations.

On November 14, 2013, the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland informed Community Trust Bank (“CTB”) that the Federal Reserve had completed its investigation of CTB’s process for assessing overdraft fees and determined that certain aspects of the process violate Section 5(a) of the Federal Trade Commission Act which prohibits unfair and deceptive practices. The Federal Reserve’s determination is expected to result in one or more of the above-described material consequences. The Federal Reserve stated that CTB will be required to modify its process for assessing overdraft fees, revise its disclosures concerning overdraft practices and provide restitution to accountholders charged certain fees from June 28, 2010 to the date CTB’s methodology is revised. CTBI expects to recognize an accrual against earnings with respect to this matter in the fourth quarter of 2013, but cannot reasonably estimate the amount of such accrual until relevant account data can be gathered and additional information is received from the Federal Reserve.
